THE LYREBIRD PROJECT

The Lyrebird Project @lyrebirdproject is a multidisciplinary collaboration centred around the book To Heal a Lyrebird. The project aims to encourage creativity in all forms, to not wait for permission and to embrace the beauty of collaboration. Let's be 'in the making'. Currently the project involves visual art, poetry, spoken word, clothing, decor, songs, soundscapes, nails, books, zines, claymaking, and theatre. Everyone who reads the book is invited to respond with art. Please DM @lyrebirdproject Perfection is undesirable. We want the HUMAN.

THIS IS THE EVENT PROGRAM

TO HEAL A LYREBIRD

To Heal a Lyrebird is a bold venture into the subconscious to produce art of hope and promise, proving that there is a better way forward through this war-torn, indifferent and climate changed world. This is the blueprint. The book's beating heart is the unique bond between a mother and her son ... Can they survive a broken world when all the odds are against them, and nothing is as it was before?

Due to ethical concerns surrounding AI and other digital corruptions this book is regarded as a piece of artwork and will not at any point be available to read electronically.

Book sales are currently available through katelistonmills.com, Art Essence Gallery in Pambula and Red Cafe and Catering in Bega.

The author of this book believes in storytelling as an artform and is committed to preserving this artistic project by keeping it as personal and as human as possible.
